2. If the officer responsible refuses to accept the notification or document directed to him, the notification or document shall be considered as though it had been delivered to him.

CHAPTER THREE
INCOME CHARGEABLE TO TAX

Article 8

(I)

In Accordance with this Law, Tax shall be charged for every Tax year on the taxable income of any Company which has been realized or has arisen in Oman or which the Secretary General presumes to have been realized or to have arisen in this way in relations to the following:

1. Profits or gains of:
 - (a) any business;
 - (b) any right granted to any individual to benefit from or utilize any land;
2. Interest and Liabilities.
3. Royalties
3. (bis) Rents of plant, Machinery and Equipment.
3. (bis) (1) Management fees, amounts collected against technical expertise transfer or research and development.
4. Any monies considered as income under this Law.
5. Any income from any other sources.

Article 9

In the application of this Law:

1. Any sum which has been obtained in any Tax year by virtue of any contract of insurance against failure to realize profits as compensation for damages or failure to realize profits shall be deemed to be gross income for that Tax year.
2. If when the income of an establishment is determined for any Tax year it should transpire that any expenditure has been deducted any loss has been written off, any bad debt has been allowed to be written off or a deduction corresponding to any liability has been settled and subsequently all or part of these deductions or bad debts have been recovered in a subsequent tax year or the liabilities have been assigned in whole or in part then any sum which is recovered and any liability which is discharged shall be deemed to be gross income in the tax year during which such sum is recovered.

3. Any sum which any Company obtains in any tax year after closing its business and which could have been included in gross income according to the provisions of this Law had it been received before the Company ceased to trade shall be deemed to be gross income for such tax year.
4. If the Government in reliance on an agreement between it and any Company has the right to receive any royalties either in cash or in kind and the Government chooses to receive the royalties in kind then there shall thereupon and for the purposes of determining the income chargeable to tax of that Company for the tax year in which such royalties were paid to the Government be added a sum equal to these royalties to the gross income of the Company for that tax year.
5. Any surplus amount resulting from any additional adjustment in any tax year in accordance with the First Schedule is deemed to be gross income of that tax year.

Article 10

1. If the Secretary General has reasonable cause to believe that the basic purpose or one of the basic purpose in any transaction (whether prior to or subsequent to the coming into force of this Law) was to avert or reduce a tax liability for any tax year, then he may, if he deems it to be just and reasonable, order the necessary settlement in respect of the charge to tax and this shall be as he considers fit to prevent aversion or reduction of the charge to tax which would result from such transaction. But the provisions of this paragraph shall not have effect with regard to any transaction the basic purposes of which is the transfer of a business carried on by an individual or a group working in common to a Company set up for this purpose.

2. Without prejudice to the generality of the powers contained in paragraph (1) the powers contained therein include:

One) the subjection of Companies to tax to which they would not have originally been subject but for such settlements or but for which they would have been subject to less tax;

Two) assessment to tax in a sum greater than that which would have been possible without such settlement.

Article 11

If a Company carries out a transaction with another person and it becomes clear to the Secretary General that having regard to the strong link between such Company and such person the transaction was planned so as to lead to an omission by that Company to realize income chargeable to tax or to realize income less than that which would normally be expected but for such planning, then the taxable income of such Company arising from such transaction shall be presumed to be the sum which could have been expected had such transaction not taken place between persons who had not agreed on such a plan.

CHAPTER FOUR DETERMINATION OF INCOME CHARGEABLE TO TAX

Section (A)
Accounting and Accounting Periods

Article 12

1. In accordance with this Article income chargeable to tax shall be computed in accordance with one of the generally accepted methods of commercial accounting. The method followed on the part of any Company must be that which it follows itself on a continual basis. All Companies except for those mentioned below must use the method of accruals followed in commercial accounting:
 - One) those for which the Secretary General has determined in a written notification any other method of commercial accounting; or
 - Two) those which have presented a written request to the Secretary General and by virtue thereof have obtained his consent to the use of any other method of commercial accounting.
2. Without prejudice to paragraphs 3 & 4, all Companies must prepare their accounts for an accounting period corresponding to a tax year. Tax shall be calculated in the light of these accounts and whatever amendments the Secretary General may see fit to make.
3. Any Company may, provided that it does this regularly and continually, prepare its final accounts for a period of 12 months ending on a day other than 31st of December. When a company prepares its accounts for an accounting period ending on a day other than 31st December the income chargeable to tax for such Company for such accounting period ending on such other date shall be considered after the entry of the amendments which the Secretary General considers necessary – to be the income chargeable to tax for the tax year in which the said accounting period ends and the tax assessment shall be completed accordingly.

4. A Company may at the commencement of its operations prepare its accounts for an accounting period of less than 12 months or for an accounting period not exceeding 18 months in respect of the first tax year. In the event of a Company being in liquidation the accounting period may be for less than 12 months. If a Company prepared its accounts for an accounting period longer or shorter than 12 months, the Secretary General after carrying out the amendments which he may consider necessary, shall consider the income chargeable to tax for such accounting period as though it were the income chargeable to tax for the tax year during which such accounting period ends and the assessment to tax shall be made accordingly.
5. Every Company shall preserve every register and document needed to clarify any entry in such register for a period of not less than ten years following the accounting period with which such register or document is connected.
6. Provided that the Minister shall so agree the income chargeable to tax of a Company shall be computed in a foreign currency if the registers are kept in such foreign currency.
7. If a method of accounting is used which is not the accruals method of accounting followed in commercial accountancy any reference to expenditure in any tax year or reference to expenditure due in any tax year shall be to the sums which were actually paid in such tax year.

Section (B)

Charges which must be deducted in determining Income chargeable to Tax

Article 13

1. In accordance with this Law, in determining the income chargeable to tax of any Company in any tax year all actual expenses during such tax year shall be deducted to the extent that such expenses were fully incurred. Such expenses are limited to those necessary to generate the gross income of any Company for that year. With respect to any accounting period ending, on a date other than 31st December, any expenses which were incurred specifically for the purpose of generating gross revenues during such accounting period, shall be deemed to have been the actual expenses incurred during the tax year during which such accounting period ends.

As an exemption from the provisions of the preceding paragraph, it is considered as costs the remuneration of the Chairman and members of the Board of Joint-stock Companies, also salaries and the likes paid to the partners entirely engaged in the management of other Companies. None of these costs shall be deducted from the total income of the Company except in the cases, and in accordance with the provisions, limits, ratios and limitation specified by a Ministerial decision, and without prejudice to the provisions of Articles 10 and 11 of this Law.

2. Without prejudice to generality of paragraph (1) in determining the income chargeable to tax of any Company in any tax year the following charges shall be deemed to be deductible.

One) Any depreciation which must be deducted by such Company in accordance with the First Schedule for such tax year;

Two) The value of any debt due to the Company in computing its gross income if the Secretary General considers that it has become a bad debt during such tax year.

Three) Any sum incurred provided that the Secretary General shall so agree – for the benefit of the employees of the Company and any sum to which such Company makes a contribution during the tax year concerning any pension scheme or any similar scheme approved by the Secretary General the fundamental purpose of which is to provide pensions or any similar benefits to employees in such Company when they leave its service or for persons who rely on the earning capacity of these employees in the event of their death;

Four) Gifts made to organizations specified by the Financial Affairs and Energy Resources Council, provided that the value of such gifts shall not exceed 5% of the Company's gross income; Five) Any other charges prescribed, including Auditor's fees.

Article 14

If the account of income chargeable to tax for a Company in any tax year should result in a loss then such loss shall be carried forward to the following year and shall be deducted in the computation of income chargeable to tax for such company in the following tax year and any part of such loss which is not feasible to deduct in the said following tax year shall be carried forward and deducted in the computation of income chargeable to tax for the following tax years. But a loss may not be carried forward for more than five years after the expiry of the tax year in which it was incurred.

The loss sustained during the tax exemption period shall not be carried forward or deducted. Exempted from this shall be the Companies, which are exempted from paying tax due to carrying out activities prescribed in paragraph (1) of Article 51(B) of the Law. The net loss sustained during the mandatory exemption years may be carried forward and deducted for any number of the tax years until such losses have been finally settled.

Section (C) Charges Not Deducted

Article 15

Despite the provisions of the previous Chapter, in the computation of income chargeable to tax for a Company in any tax year there may not be deducted sums which:

1. are connected with any tax stipulated by virtue of this Law or paid on account for any tax on the profits of Companies or tax of a similar nature;
2. are connected with any capital expenditure which such Company has incurred in accordance with the First Schedule;
3. are connected with any expenditure which the Secretary General deems to be inappropriate and unreasonable in relation to the value of the services offered or for any other considerations connected therewith;

4. are connected with any expenditure or loss which may be recovered by virtue of any insurance of contract or claim for compensation.

CHAPTER FIVE
DECLARATIONS AND NOTIFICATIONS

Article 16

1. Every Company shall every tax year present a provisional declaration of its income on the form prescribed for this purpose setting out its revenue chargeable to tax in such tax year as estimated by the Company and the value of the tax due in respect of such revenue within the time determined for the presentation of the declaration.

2. Every Company shall present on the form prescribed for that purpose a declaration of its income for each tax year setting out the income chargeable to tax in respect of such Company for such tax year and the value of the tax due by the Company, in respect of such income in such tax year, and in the case of Companies the capital of which exceeds RO 20,000/-, such declaration of income must be accompanied by final audited accounts bearing the certificate signed by a legal independent Auditor stating subject to any qualifications that he considers the accounts to represent a true picture of the income chargeable to tax of such Company for such financial year, but the said declaration of income must contain:
 - One) confirmation by the Company that the declaration of income presented is a true declaration representing the true income of the Company chargeable to tax and the tax payable by virtue thereof;
 - Two) any other details prescribed.

3. The provisional declaration of income referred to in paragraph (1) must be presented within three months from the date on which the accounting period, with which it is connected, expires.

4. The declaration of income referred to in paragraph (2) must be presented within six months from the date on which the accounting period with which it is connected, expires.

Article 17

The Secretary General may at any time and by virtue of a written notification demand from any office responsible to any Company that he should present a declaration of income for any tax year or part thereof or any other document connected with the income of the Company and this shall be within a period defined in the notification but such period shall not be less than 14 days from the date of the notification.

Declarations & Notifications in case of discontinuing Company Activities

Article 17 (bis)

Every Company, in case of terminating, discontinuing or suspending its activity, totally or partially, undertakes to notify the Secretariat General of terminating or suspending the activity within one week at the most from the date of termination or suspension, also undertakes to submit the tax return for the year, or part therefrom, when the activity was terminated or suspended, in addition to the closing audited accounts or any other documents related to the Company's income, during the period specified by the Secretary General.

Article 18

4. The loss, destruction or waste of capital asset (shall mean) the net value obtained for the remains of such asset plus the value of any sum of insurance or monetary or compensation in kind of whatever nature in respect of the loss, destruction or waste according to circumstances.
5. The exchange of a capital asset by means of barter (shall mean) the market value of such asset.
6. Compulsory acquisition of a capital asset by competent authorities in the light of any law in force (shall mean) the value on the basis of which the acquisition of such capital asset was made.
7. Cessation of use of a capital asset (shall man) the market value thereof.

(e) The net book value in relation to any capital asset in any tax year for which an account of the income chargeable to tax of any company is made shall mean the sum by which the capital cost of such asset including the value of any additions thereto exceeds the gross value of any deductions granted to the Company for such capital asset in all tax years previous to such tax year.

2. In this Schedule:

One) Any reference to a capital asset is presumed to include a reference to a part of that capital asset.

Two) The market value of a capital asset if there is no sale shall be determined by the Secretary General.

Three) Since the income of an accounting period which ends on a day other than 31st December is considered to be income for the tax year during which the said accounting period ends, any reference to a tax year shall be deemed to be a reference to the accounting period exceeds or is less than 12 months then any deductions granted by this schedule for the tax year shall refer to the increase or decrease in the same proportion according to circumstances.

Four) Any reference to the cost of a capital asset concerning any Company if such asset as a building shall not including the cost of any machinery or equipment fixtures or furnishings contained in the building or to ownership of land or to rights thereon.

Five) Unless the text otherwise requires any reference to the cost to any Company shall not include any sum deductible otherwise than in accordance with this Schedule in order to fix the income chargeable to tax of the Company for any tax year.

Depreciation that must be deducted annually

1. In accordance with this Schedule and in order for the Company to present that which is demanded from it by law any capital asset prescribed in this Schedule which is owned by the Company and used by it for its purpose during any tax year shall be subject to a deduction referred to in this Schedule as “annual deduction” and this shall be when computing the income for the Company which is chargeable to tax in such tax year.
2. The annual depreciation for every tax year shall be calculated in respect of any capital asset on the basis of the cost incurred by the Company and shall be a sum equal to such sum as was determined by the relevant provision at the time.

Corrections to deductions or additions as a result of dealings in assets

1. If the Company is granted a deduction by virtue of paragraph (3) in relation to any capital asset for any tax year and disposes of such asset, then when the income chargeable to tax of such Company is calculated for the tax year during which such disposal was made a corrective deduction or addition referred to in this Schedule as “a corrective deduction” or “a corrective addition” shall be made in accordance with the circumstances and within the limits of value prescribed in the following two sub-paragraphs as the situation requires.

2. A corrective deduction shall be made when the net book value of the capital asset exceeds the sum obtained by the sale of such asset and the deduction shall correspond to such excess.
3. A corrective addition shall be made when the proceeds of sale of the capital asset exceed the net book value of such asset and the addition shall correspond to such excess.

Entry of deductions in relation to the use made of them by the Company

(5)

If the capital asset which entitles the Company to a deduction in accordance with paragraph (3) or sub-paragraph (2) or paragraph (4) is not used entirely for the purpose of such Company then the deduction shall apply to a proportionate part alone of the sum which it would be permitted to deduct were the said asset used entirely for the purpose of the Company.

Special provisions connected with the cost of assets, etc.

If the capital asset attributable to a Company was owned by such Company during a tax year end.

One) It was used for the purpose of the Company, during such previous tax year end.

Two) It was not longer owned by the Company at the end of such previous tax year because ownership was transferred or because of another reason.

Then the cost of the asset in relation to the Company shall be deemed to be the cost price paid at the time at which the capital asset became attributable to the Company originally plus the value of any additions or improvements less the value of the following sums:

1. all deductions granted to the Company or deemed to be granted to it in respect of such capital asset in accordance with this Schedule, and
2. all deductions granted to the Company by virtue of the Repealed Legislation.

Net Book value of the assets at the expiry of the period of exemption

(7)

The net book value of the capital assets used in an industrial enterprise on the last day on which such enterprise is exempt from tax shall be calculated in accordance with this Schedule notwithstanding such exemption or failure to comply with the requirements of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph (3).

(8)

If a deduction in any tax year is granted by virtue of Clause (b) of paragraph (2) of Article 13 in relation to any capital asset, a deduction shall not be allowed in respect of any other provision in this Law concerning such asset in the computation of income chargeable to tax for the same tax year or any previous or subsequent tax year.

Subsidies

If the cost of any capital asset or any proportion of such cost has been borne either directly or indirectly by the Government or any person other than the owner of the asset, then in accordance with this Schedule the cost in relation to such owner shall be deemed to be the cost of the capital asset less the sum so borne or which must be borne.

Qaboos Bin Said,
Sultan of Oman

Issued on: 20th October 1996

OFFICE OF THE DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER FOR FINANCIAL AND ECONOMIC AFFAIRS

MINISTERIAL DECISION NO. 91/1984

After perusal of Royal Decree No. 47/1981 issuing the Law of Income Tax on Companies and in accordance with public interest,

It has been decided:

Article 1

When determining the taxable income of branches of foreign companies operating in the Sultanate, due regard must be given that the expenses of their overseas Head offices – which relate to the branches' expenses – should include technical consultants' expenses, actual general administration costs, any other related expenses which the Head office had actually incurred in respect of its operating the branch in the sultanate during the taxable year.

In case where it is impossible to determine these expenses from actual accounts, registers, evidences and other documents approved by the Director of Revenue, expenses are to be calculated according to the bases appearing in clauses (a), (b) or (c), whichever is the smallest amount:

One) Expenses estimated by the branch

Two) Average Head office expenses approved for the branch during the three years immediately preceding the previous taxable year, subject to assessment.

Three) 3% of the branch total income during the year subject to assessment provided that the following are taken into consideration:

(1) This percentage is to be increased to 5% in respect of branches of foreign banks and insurance Companies. The total income of branches of foreign insurance companies is to be determined on the basis of total premiums collected during the taxable year, deducting premiums paid for re-insurance.

(2) This percentage is to be increased to 10% in respect of branches of major industrial companies which use the latest and most advanced methods for production techniques or pursue scientific methods or provide technical assistance or use patents which require exchange of information and technical assistance with their Head offices. The Minister may increase this percentage above 10%.

Except for the rules contained in this Article, it is not allowed when determining taxable income in respect to branches of foreign companies operating in the Sultanate and where the activities of their Head offices are limited to supervising these branches to deduct any expenses incurred in respect of the Head office.

Article 2

Taxable income which has not been assessed by the date of enactment of this decision is subject to the rules contained herein.

Article 3

This decision shall be published in the official Gazette and shall come into effect thereafter.
